January 21.

ALTHO' Jevenis has but little leisure for literary discussions, he cannot forbear noticing a second essay from the witter, whose opinions seem to other from his own, or every subject. Nor can be refrain from applanding the dexterity with which he has retreated from his former ground, which was evidently Untenante. He is now more general in his and of commerce.

Though the writer in question has widely wandered from the matter in dispute, Juvenis will endeavor to truce him through his devious meanders, and having done so, will briefly inquire, whether commerce be promotive of the happiness of the human race!

The citing of the downfall of Persia, as a is, he apprenends, extremely unfortunated For it is a fact, well known even to those who are slightly versed in history, that the religion of the Persians excluded them from commercial pursuits. Nor can he concur in the enlogium upon the institutions of Lycurgus; on the centrary, he has ever viewed with horror a code of laws which legalized theft and a licentious intercourse between the sexes; which rendered necessary the employment of an immense number of slaves; and which made the acquisition of expertness in murdering their fellow creatures, the principal employment of the citizens.

If it be true, that "the possessor of science is not more blessed than the illiterate savage," why do the names of Copernicus and of Newton, of Des Cartes and of Buffon, of Locke and of Bacon, stand foremost in the rolls of fame? Why are they ranked, by the universal consent of all civilized nations, among the greatest benefactors of the human race!

Juvenis is really unable to perceive any "inconsistency in his remarks respecting Athens and Sparta :" they are equally applicabie, he conceives, to both republics: the Spartans, for example, carried on an "unjust war" against Athens, before the Persian invasion, to gratify their favorite Cleomenes, who wished to reinstate the tyrant Hippias in the throne. They carried on, at a subsequent period, "an unjust and ruinous" war against Thebes, to gratify Agesilaus, another favorite. So shamefully did they "abuse their power, and trample on the rights of their allies," that in the four hundred and sevent fifth year before Christ, they were deprived of the command, in the war against Persia, while that honor was conferred upon Atheus by the united voice of Greece. They were in with " exile, um, miching even their kings indous & innoceit: witness the banishment of Demaratus, to gratify the vindictive spirit of the ambitious Cleomenes.

Nor does the citing of examples, to prove that the Athenians were sometimes cruel and unjust, invalidate the proposition, that commerce is promotive of civilization. For if we examine the history of their Spartan rivals, who were destitute of commerce, we shall discover, at the first glance, a multitude of far greater enormities, of enormities, indeed, which were unparalleled in the history of the age. Among these might be noted the firequent and unprovoked massacres of the unhappy Helotes, the reduction of the whole Messenian people to a state of abject slavery, and the infamous murder of two thousand Athenian prisoners at Ægospotamos. "This," I might rejoin, "is the refinement of your" agricultural state.

The assertion that "Sparta fell by commerce," is contradicted by the uniform testimony of historians.

Although the perfidy of the Carthagenians was indeed "proverbial" with the Roman historians, an eminent modern writer has given it as his opinion, that had the arms of Carthage been triumphant, Roman faith would have been proverbial instead of Punic.

The present wretched condition of Spain and of Portugal, cannot, with propriety, be attributed to commerce. While the trade of those kingdoms was in a flourishing state, they were at the height of their power. But no sooner was it restrained by a number of the most absurd and oppressive regulations that ever disgraced a code of maritime laws, than they began to decline And it is a fact, as well established as any in the history of modern Europe, that the commerce and the power of those kingdom's have declined together.

Leaving history, however, to speak for itself, let us briefly inquire, whether commerce be promotive of the happiness of the human race? That the possession of the necessaries of life in abundance is essential to happiness, will, it is presumed, be readily conceded. In states which are without commerce the labor of the agriculturalist is limited by, and proportioned to, the domestic consumption; and in common seasons his labor affords a sufficient supply; but when

" Contagious fogs have fallen on the land, " And made the ox to stretch his yoke in vain,

" The ploughman lose his saveat, and the green

To rot, ere yet his youth attain'd a beard," all the horrors of famine are quickly felt by a

of their own soil In a commercial state, on the other hard, the busbandman cultivates the soil to the utmost extent of his ability, knowing, that when the domestic market shall be supplied, his surplus produce, instead of rotting in his possession, will be bought by the merchant engaged in foreign trade. And when, in years of scarcity, the produce of their lands is insufficient to support their inhabitants, commerce quickly wafts from distant shores a copious supply. In such a counassertions so general, indeed, that he attri- try the fear of famine, the most terrible of tures aimost all the evils which have afflicted the evils which afflict the human race, can mankind, to the perticious effects of riches never intrude itself. Thus far, then, is commerce promotive of the happiness of the hu-Again, it will doubtless be granted that the enjoyment of an abundance of the convenienties of life, if not essential to, is at least promotive of happiness. Commerce, by a mutual exchange of production, among the nations of the earth, makes the conveniencies of proof of the permitious effects of commerce, each one common to all. The summer heats of Virginia are rendered more tolerable by the light manufactures of the east, and its inhabitants frequently snatched from the brink of the grave, by the salutary medicines of distant climes. In a word, they are indebted to commerce, for a multitude of conveniencies, which domestic industry could never produce, and for all the happiness which their enjoyment affords.

But the stock of human happiness is incalculably augmented, by the industry which commerce occasions. The wise Creator of the universe has so constituted man, that labor is absolutely necessary for the support of his existence. But so beneficently has he adepted our dispositions to our necessities, that employment, instead of being burthensome, is essential to our happiness. He who seeks for pleasure in a life of idleness, will be most grieviously disappointed, while happiness seldom fails to be the reward of useful industry. That the latter is promoted by commerce, no rational man will deny; it is one of the axioms of political occoromy.

To commerce, too, as the source of civilization and refinement, are we indebted for all the happiness of which they are productive; for these exquisite epjoyments which science confers upon her votaries : for those refined emotions of the heart which are wholly unknown to savage man; for the pure delights of sentimental love, the most transporting which mortals can enjoy.

Since commerce, then, increases our stock of necessaries and conveniences, promotes useful industry, and advances civilization and refinement, we should not hesitate to pronounces that it is promotive of the happiness of the human race; that the visionery ideas of those who wish for its extinction vanish before the light of reason, like the vapours of the arring before the meridian sun.

JUVENIS.

ERRATA in the last essay of Juvenis. In the fifth paragraph, instead of commerce was &c. the genial instrument, read, the ge-Bial nutriment.

In the sixth paragraph, instead of, is it reasonable to suppose that commerce is vitiating &c. to republican constitutions, read, to republican institutions.

LONDON, February 1. A ship arrived in the river from Monte Video, is said to have brought a report that gen: Liniers entertains a design of eman. cipating Spanish America, and has made no secret of it to the British.

Moniteurs to a late date have been received, their contents are unimportant .-The following are a few of the miscellane. ous paragraphs:

The Russian fleet is fitting at Cronstadt with great activity; 306 row-gallies are te follow it when it sails from Copenhagen. There are numerous corps of troops to be embarked for that place.

Strong batteries are erecting in the frent of the harbors of Revel and Cronstedt.

Bonaparte is making arrangements for the improvement of his dock yards; there are to be 18 companies of about 177 men each, and to be divided into sub-divisions of eighteen.

It is in contemplation in France, to plant and cultivate the cotton tree in the south-

A number of letters arrived on Friday in Loudon, from France, Holland, and Hamburg. They all concur in deploring the dreadful effects of the late tyrannical decrees of Bonaparte, and in foreboding the eventual ruin to the mercantile in teres.s. from a perseverance in those op pressive and impolitic expedients.

In the house of commons, on Wednes day, a trial of strength was made respecting the expedition to Copenhagen. The debate continued till six o'clock in the morning. The house divided -for approval of the expedition 258-against it 108.

February 4.

The first of trapsports, with five thousand troops on board, now at Portsmouth, under orders for North America, will be accompanied by five line of battle ships. The military force will be encreased by a regiment of light dragoons, and three companies of artillery; the whole under the command of general Prevest. The officer who commands the naval part has not been mentioned. It is supposed to be destined for some secret enterptize in the first instance. Colonel Houghton, of the 8h is appointed brigadier general on the occasion.

GREENOCK February 10. By the mail which arrived on Thursday from the Mediterranean, letters have been received from Gibraliar, Malta, Lag. hore, Algiers, &c.

A great change, it is said, is about to be operated under the influence of Bona parce, in the government of Spain. It is said that the prince of Austurias is to be declared sovereign of both Portugal and Spain, and that his father is to abdicate the throne of the latter kingdom. In re. turn for the acquisition of Portugal, Spain is to crede Paris Rico and Caba to Bo paparte, and to great to France a free trade with her South American possessi. ons. Other accounts state, that on the Etraria had arrived at Madrid on her way to Portugal, where she was to be invested with the supreme authourity as queen and guardian of her infant son the king." Official details of the actions at Buenos Ayres, have been published in the Madrid Court Gazette, They are of great length. Liniers asserts that the British army lost 4000 men in the first attack, It is also stated that general Whitelocke made him a pre. cent of a sword, as an acknowledgement for the humanity shown by the Spanish commander to the British prisoners and the wounded. In return general Liniers presented some valuable minerals, and other curiosities, to general Whi elocke. In Gibraltar, the garrison entertain no apprehensions from the projected attack upon the fortress. Besides the confidence arising from their own strength, if that were wanting, there would be no fear of any attempt against them from the want of means of assault on the part of the enemy. Some letters indeed mention, that prepa. rations were making for commencing the seige. It was well known, however, at Gibraltar, that the southern provinces of Spain were almost in a state of famine, so that it would be impossible to furnish sus. tenance for a beseiging army of French and Spaniards, no general embargo appears to have been laid in the Spanish ports.

FROM THE TRENTON FEEERALIST.

GENUIVE DEMOCRAT'S CREED.

I believe it was both landable and patriotic for men in Washington's and Adams' timeto write, print or publish, wilful and malleious falshoods against the government, and that the sedition law which punished these acts was a very wicked unconstitutional law.

I believe it is highly criminal and seditions for men to speak, print or publish any thing respecting president Jefferson and his men however true it may be, provided it does not praise and eulogise them and their works.

I believe it was highly criminal in Wash. ington and Adams to have any state secrets,

A believe it is highly laudable in our present rulers to keep all knowledge of public affairs to themselves, and to make congress sit one half the time with closed doors.

I believe the Pennsylvania insurrections, which cost the country upwards of a million of dollars, were just and necessary, and were raised by patriotic and good men, and

I believe that every man, under our present rulers, who should rise in opposition to them, or should even talk about rising, ought to be hung up without judge or jury. I believe lawyers are a post to society and ought to be driven from it because of their influence in courts of justice. I believe it highly laudable in the present administration not only to expend money upon an object different from what it was approprinted for, but even to take out of the treasury in violation of the constitution, large sums (say half a million or more, as in the case of the war with Tripoli) which have never been appropriated to any object whatever. I believe it was highly criminal in the federal administration to make any distinction in their appointments to office between democrats and federalists to the prejudice of the former, and

I believe it highly landable and praiseworthy in the present administration not only not to appoint men to office who differ from them in opini on, but also to turn every federalist out of office who is in, however just and upright they may have acted, and to put democrats in their places, whether honest, capable or faithful to the constitution or not.

I believe it was highly extravagant and unjust to give presidents Washington and A dams twenty five thousand dollars a year,

I believe it highly economical and just to give president Jefferson the same sum, besides house rent free.

I believe it was highly extravagant and antirepublican to give the heads of department 5000 dollars a year, during the federal administration, though living was much higher then than it is now, and I believe it very moderate and proper to give the heads of department now, being democrats, the same sum yearly, though living is much cheaper than it was then I believe president Jefferson acted very honorably and honestly in giving Callender one hundred dollars for writing falsehoods against Washington and Adams, though.

I believe Callender was a very great rascal for afterwards telling it to the world. I believe it was right to give Casar A Rodney 2000 dollars (being a democrat) for pleading against the Pennsylvania judges, though acquitted, and George Hay (being a democrat) 2 or 3000 dollars, besides his state ed salary as district attorney of Virginia, for pleading against Burr, though he was acquit-

PHILADELPHIA, March 21.

On Saturday arrived the ship Atlas, Davis, from Amsterdam. Left the Texel roads, Jamary 21, at which time the ship Virginia, captain Crocket, and brig Hannah, captain Franing were getting under way, both for N. York. The same evening saw the Virginia at anchor near the outer buoy with a signal Tying for a pilot; judged the brig had returned again to the roads. Was lying in New Diep, and to sail in a few days, the ships Monticello, Storey, for New York; Sally, Frost, and Shepherdess, ---, for Baltimore. The Eliza from Baltimore, had arrived a few days before. Same day I sailed, was informed by a letter from Amsterdam, that the imperial decree was then in force in Holland, and all ressels which should arrive, which had been in England, would be confiscated. Jan. 24, in lat. 57 20, long. 1 40, east, saw a wrecked brig with her foremast along side, her sides newly painted yellow, with a white stern, as there was a large sea going and her main deck awash, did not attempt to board her.

Yesterday arrived schr. Phæbe, capt. Howard, 15 days from St. Martins. Left no Ame. rican vessel there, nor a barrel of flour for sale, and famine staring them in the face. On Thursday last off cape Henry, he fell in with a British fleet: he was boarded by one of the ships of war, treated with marked politeness, said they were standing on and off in expectation of a French squadron, and enquired of capt. H. if he had heard or seen any thing of

A hermaphrodite brig from Antigua, bound to Wilmington, N. NORFOLK, March 14.

A meeting of the citizens of this place was called by the mayor on Saturday last, to take into consideration measures for the relief of the distressed seamen now in this place. A number of citizens attended, but the meeting was not considered as sufficiently numerous to proceed to business; and another we understand will be called. Every person is satisfied and all are willing to adopt some measure for the TEMPORARY relief of these unfortunate men, but all are sensible that it is impossible for the inhabitants of this place to make provision for their PERMANENT supbe the one which had the most advocates, was handred and seventy five dollars and eighty six that which we believe will be adopted. While the distressed citizens of Norfolk were occupied in devising means for the relief of the scamen aiready out of employ, it was with great grief that they understood that upwards of one hundred and seventy men, discharged from the gun boats on Saturday, are to be added to the number of the unfortunate, for whom some provision must be made.

We were never more astonished, than when we understood that the government had ordered these men to be discharged, at a time when it must have been known that they would be left without the means of subsistence. To enlarge upon the cruelty of such a measure, would be to insult every feeling and generous heart. But we must remark, that this measure proceeds from men, who, if you would believe them, are ready to expend the last dollar, and to shed the last drop of blood in support of their " injured seafaring fellowcitizens" And yet they can very philosophically deprive their dear fellow citizens of the means of subsistence, and leave them to perish or depend on the bounty of a community already bowed down by their own sufferings In a political view this measure in not less absurd than it is cruel in a moral sense. With the recollection of this transaction, can a country governed by men with such feelings, expect defenders in the hour of danger and of difficulty? The remembrance must chill the warmth of patriotism, and damp the arder of

COMMUNICATION.

Yesterday terminated the ninetieth day since the Embargo was laid, and much speculation has gone forth with respect to the crush it would occasion in the Mercantile world, and which we, in common wi h our fellow-citizens, deplore its destructive consequences, yet the people of this town may with great truth felicitate themselves, that in the general wreck they have withstood the shock as well, if not better, than some of their neighbors. We hear of no failures in this place, and we are informed that for the last three months there has only been 28 suits commenced in the court of this county, which is at least 130 short of the number generally brought either in this court or the former corporation court in the same space of time, which not only proves that the people of this place are as well off as most o her commercial towns, but also that there exists a spirit not to oppress each other during the continuance of such distressing times-and while this spirit of accommodation exists among the citizens it is hoped that the government whom we are infermed are plaintiffs in a proportion of the suits commenced, will not be more rigorous than private individuals, especially while they have an overflowing treasury, and their debts not jeopardized by delay, and we hope to see this clemency realised at the district court, which sits here the first of April next, by a continuance for the present of the U. States suits depending therein,

Comparative celerity-In the year 1754, " a flying coach" was advertised in England, and the advertisement stated, that " however incredible it might appear, it would certainly arrivd in London in four days and a half after leaving Manchester." The same distance is now travelled in 30 hours, and has been done in less. It is 185 miles. This may be called a rapid trogress in improvement.

TRADE TO THE BRAZILS.

LETTER

From the Portuguese ambassador to the governor of the island of St. Catherine.

Agreably to the letter which I had the honor of addressing you, under date of the 4th Jan. of the present year, and in which I explained at large to your excellency the motives which induced me to sanction the sending of British merchantmen to the island of St. Catharine, provided that their cargoes consist of articles hitherto received into the custom houses of Portugal, I have now to request that you will be pleased to order that the ship - should be admitted into the custom house of that island, the captain or master of which (who is the bearer of this letter) you will permit to unload and sell his cargo, and give directions that no more duties shall be required of her, than were paid in Portugal for the same articles; and also that those duport. The measure which appeared to us to | ties should not be demanded until he has sold and dispatched his cargo, in every particular conforming to the practice of the customhouses at Lisbon.

And as it may possibly happen that your excellency may not yet find yourself authorised to consent to the sale of such cargoes, I earnestly request you, that at all events you will be pleased to allow that they should be landed and properly warehoused, and that you will order that the ships should moor in that port, waiting there with their crews, without molestation, until your excellency shall receive the instructions and orders of his royal highness the prince regent on this head.

Your excellency will observe, that the bearer of this letter ought also to present you with the manifest of the cargo, confirmed by me, and the licence of the British privy council; to fulfil the conditions of which, your excellency will be pleased to prder the officers of the customs to deliver to the hearer a certificate of the regular discharge of the articles specified in such manifests.

Codditions agreed by the merchants for the admission (provisionally until his royal highness's resolutions are known) into the port of the island of St. Catharine, of all such goods as were heretofore imported into Por

1. That all merchants wishing to make adventures to the Brazils without waiting for the regulations of his royal highnerine privy be obliged to the point out the port that come in which will point out the port that will be agreed on by his excellency Mr. Canning and me, and to which alone they must give bond to go.

2. That every master and every shipper will give the usual bonds at this custom house for the due delivery at the custom house of the said port. 3. Besides every master and shipper will bind themselves to pay at the custom house of the said port the same duties that were paid in Portugal upon every such article, or in lieu thereof, such as may have been already established by his royal highness the Prince

Regent. 4. According to your offer, and to ascertain that no contraband goods are exported thither, the manifest of the said cargo sworn, and authenticated as usual at this customhouse, will be signed by the agent and consul general, Mr. John Charles Lucena, and

5. On these conditions which cortain all that fair trade can wish for at present, I will most willingly provide every captain with a letter of mine to the government of said port, informing him of what I have done, and requesting him earnestly to require immediate instructions from the Rio de Janeiro, in case that his royal highness is already arrived and should his royal highness be not yet arriyed, requesting him besides not to enforce the existing laws, but to suspend them until he receives the instructions required, which can- nearly six hundred Subscribers not be long in coming; and in the mean while not to molest but permit the said ships to wait peaceably for the new orders, unless he should be authorised by his former instructions to ad- for conducting a Newspaper, mit the entry of such goods, on paying the same duties as in Portugal, and to allow the captains to invest their proceeds in the produce of the country, in which case I will ardently request the governor to facilitate this

P. S. I need not say, that upon your application with the license of the privy council, &c. the manifest will be signed by me, and my letter to the governors will be delivered immediately, without the least expence to any of the concerned.

To his excellency D. Lucis Mauricio da Silveira, or to whomsoever is at present governor of the island of St. Catharine, Brazil.

N. B. I request their excellencies the viceroy and governor of the different ports of Brazil which this ship may enter in distress, that they will cause it to be accompanied by a guarda costa to the port of the island of St. Catharine, in order to avoid any unjust suspicion against the captain, of illicit commerce.

Washington, March 5, 1808.

" Dear Sir,

" Yesterday I had the honor to re. ceive your letter of the 1st instant, and am not surprised to learn that some of my friends in your city are induced to infer from my silence on the subject of the nomination of candidates for the offices of President and Vice-President, made some time ago at this place, and since published in the newspapers, that my name was mentioned for the latter, with my knowledge and approbation. The inference is a natural one, although in the present instance incor-

" Viewing with great anxiety the critical & alarming situation of our national affairs, and deeply impressed with the belief that it would require the united wisdom and patriousm of the different branches of the government, to avert the dangers which threaten our country, I formed a resolution at the commencement of this important session, not to furticificie in any conversation touching the enswing Presidential election, or to express any sentiment or determination respecting it, that wight have a tendency to disunion, or any baseful effect on our public deliberations.

This resolution I have hitherto scrupulously observed, and now regret the necessity I feel myself under, of a partial departure from it, in order to remove the fulse impressions which it seems my silence has occasioned, by assuring my friends, through you, that I never have been directly or indirectly consulted on the subject, either before or since the nomination was made ; nor was I even apprized of the meeting held for the purpose otherwise, than by having accidentally seen a notice or summons to one of the members to attend, from S. R. Bradley

" However correct and forcible the objections you have stated areanst this procedure may be, yel as it is a business in which I have no agency or participation, and over which I can have no controul; it might be considered imprefier in me, situated as I am, to make my comments on it.

will sell my FARM in Fairfax county, and give immediate possession. It is less han three miles from Alexandria, and six knise stands on an elevated half less-the looks the City, Alexandria, the river, with the shore, and hills of Maryland. The house which I erected, and is nearly finished, consists of a center house two stories high, and wings of one, joined to it, by circular corridors, the north wing contains 2 small rooms, the front of it, and the corridor adjoining, intended for a green house, this leads to a drawing room-a dining room separated from it by the passage and stair-case, is next to the south corridor which contains 3 closets, and leads to the kitchen-two small rooms in this wing with the kitchen—a pump of excellent water at the door. The second story of the center house contains 3 chambers and a dressing room, with hie places-a large closet adjoins the dining room—one of the same size opens on the stair case, both fitted up with shelves—a store room in the garret, and cupulo on the house top, from whence is seen a delightful, variegated landscape, completes the description of the mansion house. A neat cottage accommodates laborers, and there are stables, a carriage house, and ice house; the farm contains 103 acres, 70 enclosed and cultivated, the rest in wood; this place boasts the finest collection of fruit that I have seen, besides every other sort; the list given to me was 800 apples, 800 peaches, and 300 cherry trees: I have added several hundred of the best kinds.—The garden consists of 12 large squares, the soil enriched and borders filled with fruit trees, and bushes; it is surrounded by a live cedar hedge, which also extends on each side of the house: the former proprietor possessed much taste, and collected many ornamental trees and shrubs, which are judiciously disposed about the grounds. The soil is suitable for grass, and the portion of ground devoted to timothy and clover, yield an abundant crop; it produced good wheat and oats last year, and I think with small expence may be rendered productive. Those who wish a residence, where health will be preserved, and convenience of intercourse with Alexandria, George-Town, and the seat of government, will find all combined in Moun!-Washington. I will shew the premises and impart the terms of sale, upon applications by letters directed to the Post-Office, Alexandria.

A Tract of Land,

I Themas Chapmay, which was granted to release from William Tebbs for 691 done bearing date the 17th and 18th days of June

Also, one other tract of Land in the same county, which was conveyed to the said Thomas Chapman by deeds of lease and release from Bertrand Ewell and his wife, and Jesse Ewell and his wife, for 30 acres more or less, bearing date the 9th and 10th days of April, 1775.

Also, one tract or parcel of Land, which was conveyed to the said Chapman by deeds of lease and release from Jesse Ewell and his wife, and Bertrand Ewell and his wife, for 150 acres, more or less, bearing date the 2d and 3d days of January, 1784, all of which deeds are now of record in the coun ty court of Prince William. And also, all the other estate, right, title, claim and possession which Carr Chapman, on the 20th November, 1797, had of and in to the land and real estate whereof his father or any of his ancestors had died, seized or possessed. The above description is taken from the mortgage deed executed by Carr Chapman to Thompson & Veitch on the 20th November, 1797, and now recorded in Prince William court, under which the property is sold. It is understood that the three tracts of land have been united into one which adjoins the town of Dumfries. On it there is a dwelling house & some wood. The general rights described will, as it is believed, comprehend a fourth part of the reversion of all the dower land of Susanna Gwinett, and one fourth part of the reversion of all the land devised by Thomas Chapman to Elizabeth Overall, after the death of the said Susanna and the said Elizabeth Bond and approved security will be required.
